

Building a Foundation for a Career in the Arts

A HAMILTON EDUCATION is designed to prepare you for a lifetime of personal and professional achievement and satisfaction. Through your coursework and activities, you will develop a broad base of knowledge and skills to prepare you for a variety of career opportunities. However, you will need to take initiative to explore career options and develop career-specific skills. Obtaining an internship is one of the best ways to build a foundation for your career.

Most formal internships are competitive; you should view your first two years at Hamilton as a time to gain career-related experiences to make yourself marketable for a competitive internship following your junior year. Career-related experiences can take place during the academic year as well as during the summer. Your initial summer opportunities will most likely be unpaid, located close to your home, and with a small to medium-size organization. The following are types of organizations and departments you might consider contacting:

- ▶ Local museum or gallery (community, college or library)
- ▶ Performance space (theatre and arena, summer or professional)
- ▶ Children's program
- ▶ Non-profit organization with mission involving art or art instruction
- ▶ Senior center
- ▶ Local arts council
- ▶ Summer arts and crafts fair
- ▶ High-school summer program
- ▶ Summer camp with art program
- ▶ Cultural organization
- ▶ Local artist and craftsperson
- ▶ Local government, tourism and historical office/society
- ▶ Auction house

Hamilton

Building a Foundation for a Career in the ARTS

The chart on the right identifies tasks in each of three educational areas. They are progressive, and we strongly recommend that you begin this process during your first two years at Hamilton.

Career-Planning Tasks

The Career Center offers personalized and comprehensive services to help you with the career-planning process.

Career-Related Experience

It is important that you be actively involved on campus as well as use your summers to develop career-related skills and experience.

Academic Preparation

Select courses, a concentration and electives that help you develop creative, critical thinking, writing and speaking skills as well as skills specific to a career in the arts.

Photos from left: Xin Wang '09 interning at Sotheby's in New York City; students perform with the College orchestra; Christan Copeland '06 and Jason Paulino '06 in Shakespeare's As You Like It.

	Career-Planning Tasks	Career-Related Experience	Academic Preparation
1	Meet with a career counselor. Write a résumé. Attend career information sessions. Identify potential career-related experiences.	Become active on campus (i.e., Independent Music Fund, Campus Activities Board, music and performance groups, student news and literary publications that include photography). Volunteer/intern during the summer in your home area (see options on reverse side).	Explore a variety of academic courses.
2	Learn about specific career options in the arts using resources such as, Spotlight On Careers: Arts Administration, Facts On File and informational meetings with professionals working in the arts. Update résumé. Develop a prospect list of potential sites for gaining career-related experience during the summer.	Continue your involvement with campus organizations, assuming leadership roles. Obtain a career-related experience during the summer in your home area.	Choose a concentration and elective courses that enhance arts-related skills and knowledge, such as: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▶ Studio arts</li> <li>▶ Performing arts</li> <li>▶ Art history</li> <li>▶ Introduction to museum studies</li> <li>▶ Public speaking</li> <li>▶ Social sciences</li> </ul>
3	Secure a competitive career-related experience during the summer of your junior year.		